

Don't cut Ukraine aid when it's needed most

As Ukrainian forces begin their counteroffensive, we were concerned to see Speaker of the House Kevin McCarthy's ill-timed comments suggesting that Congress may not provide additional supplemental funding to Ukraine. We're confident that a bipartisan Congressional majority remains convinced that Ukraine's victory is in America's national security interest, and that Ukraine will win so long as the United States and our allies continue to provide strong support. We appreciate Speaker McCarthy's past statements of support for Ukraine. We look forward to the Biden Administration submitting a new supplemental funding request to Congress and urge Speaker McCarthy to lead a renewed bipartisan effort to provide Ukraine the resources it needs to ensure the success of the counteroffensive and its ultimate victory.
